Former Bishop Urges Radical Church Reform

Rev. Paul Jones, Deposed in Utah for Pacifism, Asks

Coptional Use of Prayer Book and Rejection of Endowments Among Suggestions

The Rev. Paul Jones, who was compelled to resign as Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal jurisdiction in Utah because of a formal protest against his pacifism, has addressed an open letter to the church demanding revolutionary changes in policy. His letter was sent from Brownsvile Junction, Me., where he has been laboring as a rural missionary. It was published in the columns of "The Church man."

Bishop Jones's case will be aired at the formal prayer Book in the columns of "The Church and an open letter to the church demanding revolutionary changes in policy. "The big question which stands out at present is whether the rank and file of the membership of the Church indorses these hopes which have been expressed and really desires a more democratic order. If the clergy and laity want such democratic expressions to stand as the mind and aim of the church, a very searching test must be met when the general convention meets in Detroit next October.

"Such a test will not lie in the resolutions that may be passed approving this or that or condemning the other. They are at the best mere scraps of paper, for no one expects the Church to change the world order over night by means of resolutions.

Real Test Coming

Real Test Coming

"But—and here is where the real test comes—if we really indorse the talk of the leaders about democracy and reconstruction, we should demonstrate it at Detroit by inaugurating steps to being our own life as an organization into harmony with those democraticideals. A critical scrutiny of the laws and methods of the Church reveals many faults and shortcomings from the point of view of any sort of democracy. We should, then, enter upon such housecleaning at home that our words in regard to the large problems may ring true and command respect.

"Prominent among those things which are needed to bring our practical life as an organization into accord with principles of democracy, would be the following:

"Proportional Representation—At present dioceses having from 50,000 to 100,000 communicants have no more representatives in the House of Deputies than those with less than 3,000. The communicants of the twenty-two smallest dioceses added-together de not even equal in numbers those of the Diocese of New Real Test Coming

THE strike fever has reached the boundaries of what magraine and movie writers call "the underworld" and a walk-out of burglars is a not impossible event. At present the strike virus has affected the handbook menters who lead the sheep at the shearing. The handbook men demand a larger that of the betting commissioners winnings and a more definite establishment of each commissioner's territory. They have made no demand for shorter hours.

Betting commissioners win 90 per tent of the bets placed with them. The handbook men want a slice of this, The territory in which a commissioner operates has not been definitely fixed hence many battles between rivalfirms. The handbook men want the realm of each commissioner surveyed and definitely established. Otherwise they say they will strike, and then what will the city do?

used as a stair landing on the fifth floor of the tenement at 482 Grand Street, gave way yesterday afternoon, and the slab plunged into the basement. With it went Aaron Cohen, nineteen, an iceman standing on the fourth floor landing, who managed to dodge it as it passed but fell after it through the openings it made. He was sent to a hospital with a broken shoulder and other injuries.

Showers of plaster torm from ceilings and fragments of the marble also battered Alexander Schindler, of Hartford, Conn., and Abe Sheintop, of Stamford, who were climbing to the accound floor to visit a friend. "Stop her somehow," said the departing elepaties, "or you'll have to walk all the way home from Turkey."

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, supering the Anti-Saloon League, who has been challenging Reuben L. Haskell to a debate on prohibition almost every day for weeks past, announced yesterday that the debate would be held in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, or, the night of October 20.

The hall has been hired and the people of Brooklyn will be invited to attend. Mr. Haskell has not given the slightest intimation that he will be there. Mr. Anderson says, however, that if his opponent doesn't show up the debate will proceed anyway, just as though he were there.

Defines His Democracy

His letter to "The Churchman" follows:

"In the public utterances of many of the leaders of the Church during the last year, there has been continued reference to the democratic ideal.
Democracy, reconstruction, the new order and similar expressions crop out with great frequency in the annual addresses of the bishops and in the Church papers, not to mention the pronouncements of the Joint Commission on Social Service, the National Council of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the radical organizations of the Church.

"There would seem to be no question but that the leaders of the Church and in the reordering of the
